IT'S NICE TO GET BACK to the ol' computer and work on the Digest. It's what I can honestly say I love to do. Now, I enjoy working with the people at Ken's Deli, and of course our direct mail folks are great – each business offers challenges and keeps the mind busy. But when I'm working on the Digest I feel like it's just you and me, having a conversation.

While SLDigest is mostly about what makes people laugh, we have a serious side too. That's where our inspirational stories come in, and sometimes in this column when I'm trying to get a message across to seniors and others who drop by to catch up with what we're doing. This gets tough because I don't want to offend any of you, and yet there are subjects I feel we should take a look at, especially when we can be of help to others.

I like to think seniors have an abundant supply of valuable advice for younger generations. I see seniors in jobs that are less than popular, many of them working for minimum wage when their production is equal to or greater than their younger counterparts. I'm also aware there are seniors who saved and made wise investments and so have a nice nest egg. Those seniors are in the best position to volunteer with charities, but the number of people in that position are declining. Yet, most people still plan to retire at 65 – and sometimes younger – when many are still fully capable of handling a full-time position. I admit I've never wanted to retire. While I've been athletically active, I'm a terrible golfer nor really a golfing fan. I tried playing golf years ago and an old guy beat me so badly I knew it was not my game!

I've had the pleasure of meeting a number of you who purchase our aloe products or have visited Ken's Deli, and many of you look like you could still work a few hours a week. I for one would really like to find someone well seasoned who could help us. I already have two young ladies – both past retirement age – who are doing a great job for us. Now, I'm not passing judgment, just giving you a few things to think about.

Changing the subject – you guessed it – I've got to get a plug in for the Deli and our continued on page 4

Dental Glossary for Patients

by Susan Glenn Caddell, DDS

SOMETIMES WE MEDICAL PERSONNEL make a big mistake in how we talk to our patients. During our training we had to learn a whole new vocabulary. We had to know the parts of the body, words describing direction in relation to other parts of the body, procedures, descriptive words for various conditions, etc. Many of the words derive from a Latin base and who speaks Latin on a daily basis? I'm a little "old school" and I have a Stedman's Medical Dictionary with 1588 PAGES of medical jargon. But in speaking with our patients we sometimes forget that they didn't take that medical terminology class along with us.

Presented below are just a few words you might hear at your next dental visit and I want you to be informed. Certainly, if your dentist says a word that you are unclear regarding its meaning, please by all means, ask for an explanation. This list is a partial reprint of an article from the Florida Dental Association in the Vol. 30, No. 3, Reception Room 2018 issue of Today's FDA:

Abscess: acute or chronic localized inflammation, probably with a collection of pus, associated with tissue destruction and, frequently, swelling; usually secondary to infection.

Amalgam: a mixture of silver, mercury, tin and copper that provides a strong, hard, durable filling; sometimes described as "silver-colored" fillings.

Bleaching: cosmetic whitening of teeth using peroxide.

Cavity: the destruction of your tooth enamel, the hard outer layer of your teeth; may be continued on page 5

At The Racetrack

A stock analyst and a Wall Street broker went to the races. The broker suggested betting $10,000 on a horse. The analyst was skeptical, saying that he wanted first to understand the rules, to look at the horses, etc. The broker whispered that he knew a secret algorithm for the success, but he could not convince the analyst. "You are too theoretical," he said, and bet on a horse. Sure enough, that horse came first, winning him a lot of money. Triumphantly, he exclaimed, "I told you I knew the secret!" "What is your secret?" the analyst asked. "It's rather easy. I have two kids, three and five years old. I sum up their ages and I bet on number nine." "But, three and five is eight," the analyst protested. "I told you, you're too theoretical!" the broker replied, "Haven't I just shown experientially that my calculation is correct?!"

0 to 200 In 6 Seconds

Bob was in trouble. He'd forgotten his wedding anniversary. His wife Ruth was really upset. She told him, "Tomorrow morning, I expect to find a gift in the driveway that goes from 0 to 200 in 6 seconds – and it better be there!!" So Bob went shopping. The next morning he got up early and left for work. When his wife woke up, Ruth looked out the window and, sure enough, there was a box gift-wrapped in the middle of the driveway. Confused, the wife put on her robe, ran out to the driveway and brought the box into the house. She opened it and found a brand new bathroom scale. Bob has been missing since Friday.

Long Winded

A politician was a guest speaker at the golf club dinner. As he stood up to speak, a few of the men saw it as an opportunity to sneak off to the bar. An hour later, with the politician still talking, another man joined them. "Is he still talking?" they asked him. "Yes," the other man answered. "What on Earth is he talking about?" "I don't know. He's still introducing himself."

Young Rider

A little boy out riding his new bicycle knocked down an old lady. She was a bit shaken, but got up, dusted herself off, then turned to the little boy and said, "Don't you know how to ride a bike?" "Yes," he answered, "but I don't know how to ring the bell yet."

SEEN IN THE CLASSIFIEDS:
Nordic Track $300. Hardly used.
Call Chubby.

THE YOUNG DOCTOR WAS EXAMINING his first patient. The old man's body was covered with a rash. Excusing himself, the physician went into his private office and hurriedly consulted his textbooks. Finding nothing helpful, he returned to his old patient. Completely baffled, the doctor asked, "Have you ever had this before?" "Yes, twice," replied the old patient. "I see," said the young doctor in his most professional voice. "Well... you've got it again."

Making Headlines

An old stockbroker decided to take a day off and visit some of his old professors at his alma mater. As he made his way through the entrance, he noticed a dog attacking a small child. He quickly grabbed the dog and throttled it with his two hands. The next day the local newspaper reported the story with the headline, "Valiant Student Saves Boy From Ferocious Dog." The old stockbroker called the editor and strongly suggested that a correction be issued and that the paper tell the readers he was a successful Wall Street broker and not a student. The next day the newspaper issued a correction and the headline read, "Pompous Old Stockbroker Kills School Mascot."

aloe products. First, we're about to come out with a salad that will fit neatly into our Ruby Red Box for delivery, so if you happen to be one of the companies around who have Amish sandwiches delivered to you, be aware that we'll soon be offering an organic salad, formulated under the direction of a physician who is a certified natural products chef. They'll be great salads!

Also, we're offering more Amish styled pies for pickup, including a new lemon pie. For those of you who purchase our 300mg Ken's Best Aloe Vera Capsules, please know it is now available. Our sales outpaced our production last month, but we've stepped things up in order to keep it in stock.

Guess that winds it up. Thank you again for your patience as we continue to work towards getting each issue of SLDigest to you in a more timely fashion. Thank you for your kindness and God Bless, due to decay, erosion or abrasion. Cavities are also called caries.

Composites: tooth-colored restorative materials.

Crown: an artificial replacement that restores missing tooth structures; made of metal, ceramic or polymer materials, or a combination of such material.

Edentulous: having lost most or all natural teeth.

Extraction: the process or act of removing a tooth or tooth parts, usually because of disease, trauma or crowding.

Filling: the restoration of lost tooth structure by using materials such as metal, alloy, plastic or porcelain.

Gingivitis: the early stage of gum disease.

Gum disease: an infection of the tissues that surround your teeth, caused by a buildup of plaque; also known as periodontal disease.

Implants: a replacement for the roots of teeth that can anchor crowns or dentures to the jaw bone so they behave more like natural teeth.

Occlusion: any contact between biting or chewing surfaces of maxillary (upper) and mandibular (lower) teeth. Improper alignment of these surfaces is known as malocclusion.

Plaque: a soft, sticky film that accumulates on teeth composed largely of bacteria and bacterial derivatives that can contribute to tooth decay and gum disease.

Prophylaxis: removal of plaque, calculus and stains from tooth structures; professional cleaning of the teeth by a hygienist.

Resin: plastic material used in bonding, restorative and replacement procedures.

Root canal: the chamber within the root of the tooth that contains the pulp (blood vessels and nerve tissue). Treatment is sometimes necessary to remove diseased pulp, after which the canal is cleaned and sealed.

Scaling: removal of plaque and calculus from below the gumline.

Temporomandibular Joint (TMJ): the connecting hinge mechanism between the base of the skull (temporal bone) and the lower jaw (mandible).

Veneers: thin, custom-made shells crafted of tooth-colored materials designed to cover the front side of teeth; an option for correcting stained, chipped, decayed or crooked teeth. ❖

HI, AND WELCOME TO SUMMER!

Here we are in the good ol' summertime. Wow, this is my fun time because I'm on the run, when I get to go outdoors in the warm (okay – hot!) weather. Picnics, swimming, boating... I'm sure you all look forward to your favorite summer fun too.

Let's see what I can drum up this month:

A MOMMA CAT WAS TEACHING her kitten cat lore. She explained that this was the duty of all mother cats since before recorded history and it was important that her kitten not do anything to embarrass her when the kitten allowed her master to play with her. At the end of the lesson, after she had gone over all the cat rules, such as ignoring anything the human might say, she asked her kitten if there was a question she might want to ask. The kitten said, "Momma, you have given me all the situations a cat might get into and the proper cat responses, but what should I do if a new situation comes up that you haven't covered?" Momma Cat responded, "Oh my gosh! I'm SO glad you asked that. I've gotten into so many rules that I forgot the most important first rule!" Kitten asked, "What is that, Momma?" Momma drew up, looked her kitten right in the eye and said, "When in doubt – wash!"

WHAT IS A CAT? Cats do what they want. They rarely listen to you. They're totally unpredictable. When you want to play, they want to be alone. When you want to be alone, they want to play. They expect you to cater to their every whim. They're moody. They leave hair everywhere. Conclusion: They're tiny women in little fur coats.

And finally...

WHAT CATS CAN DO FOR PEOPLE

1. Warm your lap
2. Give you someone to talk to
3. Help reduce high blood pressure
4. Bring the winter air inside, nestled in our coats
5. Create a kindred feeling with other "cat people"
6. Turns common household objects like bottlecaps into toys
7. Make you more aware of birds
8. Donate our services as alarm clocks con't on page 7

POTUS PARODY

THREE CONTRACTORS ARE BIDDING to fix a broken fence at the White House. One is from Chicago, another is from Tennessee, and the third is from Minnesota. All three go with a White House official to examine the fence. The Minnesota contractor takes out a tape measure and does some measuring, then works some figures with a pencil. “Well,” he says, “I figure the job will run about $900; $400 for materials, $400 for my crew, and $100 profit for me.” The Tennessee contractor also does some measuring and figuring, then says, “I can do this job for $700; $300 for materials, $300 for my crew, and $100 profit for me.” The Chicago contractor doesn’t measure or figure, but leans over to the White House official and whispers, “$2,700.” The official, incredulous, says, “You didn’t even measure like the other guys! How did you come up with such a high figure?” The Chicago contractor whispers back, “$1000 for me, $1000 for you, and we hire the guy from Tennessee to fix the fence.” “Done!” replies the government official. And that, my friends, is how government stimulus plans work.

“Being president is like running a cemetery: you’ve got a lot of people under you and nobody’s listening.”

—Bill Clinton

A THIEF STUCK A PISTOL in a man’s ribs and said, “Give me your money.” The gentleman, shocked by the sudden attack, said, “You cannot do this, I’m a United States congressman!” The thief said, “In that case, give me my money!”

“In my many years I have come to a conclusion that one useless man is a shame, two is a law firm, and three or more is a congress.”

—John Adams

A PRIEST WENT INTO a Washington, D.C., barbershop, got his hair cut and asked how much he owed. “No charge, Father,” the barber said. “I consider it a service to the Lord.” When the barber arrived at his shop the next morning, he found a dozen small prayer booklets on the stoop along with a thank you note from the priest. A few days later a police officer came in. “How much do I owe you?” the cop asked after his haircut. “No charge, officer,” the barber answered. “I consider it a service to my community.” The next morning the barber found a dozen doughnuts on the stoop along with a thank you note from the police officer. A few days after that, a Senator walked in for a haircut. “How much do I owe you?” he asked afterward. “No charge,” the barber replied. “I consider it a service to my country.” The next morning when he arrived at the shop, the barber found a dozen Senators waiting on the stoop.

“My choice early in life was either to be a piano player in a whorehouse or a politician. And to tell the truth, there’s hardly any difference.”

—Harry S. Truman

Young Brian

The Waltons invited their new neighbors over to dinner. During dinner, Mr. Walton was asked what he did for a living. His grandson, eight-year-old Brian, jumped in and said, “Grandpa is a fisherman!” To which Mrs. Walton replied, “Brian, why do you say that? Your grandfather is a stockbroker, not a fisherman.” “No, Grandma. Every time I visit Grandpa at work and he hangs up the phone, he laughs, rubs his hands and says, ‘I just caught another fish!’”

Only The Best

Ailing old Jed went to the most prestigious doctor he could find. The doctor started off by telling Jed that his first office visit would cost $200. Old Jed said, “Hey, Doc, that’s a lot of money! I can’t afford that.” The doctor said, “Well since you’re already here, I’ll only charge you $100.” Jed says, “Doc, $100 is too much. I’m still taking care of my 90-year-old mother.” “$75 – is that all right?” Jed says, “Two of my kids came back home to live with me and the wife.” The fee was finally lowered to $10 and accepted. The doctor went on, “I’m the most expensive doctor in the city. Why did you come to me?” Old Jed answered, “Look, Doc, when it comes to where my health is concerned, money is no object!”

A BLONDE NOTICES her coworker has a thermos, so she asks him what it’s for. He responds, “It keeps hot things hot and cold things cold.” The blonde immediately buys one for herself. The next day, she goes to work and proudly displays it. Her coworker asks, “What do you have in it?” She replies, “Soup and ice cream.”

~ Jury Duty ~

A man was chosen for jury duty who really wanted to be dismissed from serving. He tried every excuse he could think of but none of them worked. On the day of the trial, he decided to give it one more shot. As the trial was about to begin, he asked if he could approach the bench. "Your Honor," he said, "I must be excused from this trial because I'm prejudiced against the defendant. I took one look at the man in the blue suit with those beady eyes and that dishonest face and I said 'He's a crook! He's guilty!' So, your Honor, I cannot possibly stay on this jury!" With tired annoyance the judge replied, "Get back in the jury box, you fool! That man is the defendant's lawyer."

ONCE UPON A TIME, an old woman had a faithful cat. And one day, a man ran over the cat with his horse-drawn carriage. So, the man went to the old woman and said, "I'm terribly sorry about your cat. I'd like to replace him." "That so nice of you!" said the old woman, deeply touched. "So how good are you at catching mice?"

Brother Masons

Bob and Bill were brother masons and great friends for most of their lives. Each had agreed that when one of them passed on to that Grand Lodge above, he would attempt to make contact with the other and tell him all about what heaven was like. As so happened, Bill went to heaven first. One night Bob was just drifting off to sleep when he heard Bill's voice calling to him. "Is that you, Bill?" "Yes, Bob. I'm honoring our agreement." "Oh, MY... what's it like?" Bob asked with some anticipation. "It's like nothing you could ever imagine. The lodge here is fantastic... better than any lodge we ever saw on Earth. The meetings are always well attended, the ritual is letter perfect, the friendship nights always have tons of new people just itching to join, and the spirit of fellowship blankets the entire place." Bob's eyes teared up. "Oh, my, it's just like we'd hoped. I'm so happy for you. But I have to ask – that sounds really great, but you don't really seem all that excited. What's wrong?" "Well, I have some good news and some bad news. The good news is that we're raising a fellow to the third degree next Wednesday." "That's fantastic! What's the bad news?" "Your name is on the list to be the Senior Deacon."

Well-Planned Retirement

The London Times reported that outside England's Bristol Zoo there is a parking lot for 150 cars and 8 buses. For 25 years, its parking fees were managed by a very pleasant attendant. The fees were £1 for cars ($1.40), and £5 for buses (about $7). Then, one day, after 25 solid years of never missing a day of work, the attendant just didn't show up; so the Zoo Management called the City Council and asked it to send them another parking agent. The Council did some research and replied that the parking lot was the Zoo's own responsibility. The Zoo advised the Council that the attendant was a City employee. The City Council responded that the lot attendant had never been on the City payroll. Meanwhile, sitting in his villa somewhere on the coast of Spain (or some such scenario), there is a man who'd apparently had a ticket machine installed completely on his own; and then had simply begun to show up every day, commencing to collect and keep the parking fees, estimated at about $560 per day – for 25 years. Assuming 7 days a week, this amounts to just over $7 million dollars! And no one even knows his name.

Secret To A Happy Marriage

Jerry was at a marriage seminar, and the leader of the seminar, a woman, asked everybody how long they'd been married. When it was Jerry's turn, he said that he'd been married for almost 50 years. "Wow," the leader gushed, "that's amazing! Perhaps you can take a few minutes to share some insights with everybody, how you stay married to the same woman for so long." "Well," Jerry said after thinking for a few moments, "I try to treat her nice, buy her presents, take her on trips... and best of all, for our 25th anniversary I took her to the Bahamas." "Well, that's really beautiful, and a true inspiration for all of us," the lady said with a smile. "Maybe you can tell us what you're going to do for your 50th anniversary." "Well," Jerry said, "I'm thinking of going back to the Bahamas to pick her up."

Golf Club Announcer

It was a perfect Saturday morning for golf, and Mike was beginning his pre-shot routine, visualizing his upcoming shot, when a voice came over the clubhouse speaker: "Would the gentleman on the ladies' tee please back up to the men's tee!" Mike was still deep in his routine, seemingly impervious to the interruption. Again the announcement – "Would the man on the women's tee kindly back up to the men's tee! Please!" Mike had had enough. He turned and shouted, "Would the announcer in the clubhouse kindly shut up and let me play my second shot!"

IF GOD HAD WANTED ME to touch my toes, he would've put them around my waist.

The Four Mari

AS I CAME OUT of the supermarket that sunny day, pushing a cart of groceries towards my car, I saw an old man with the hood of his car up and a lady sitting inside, the passenger door open. The old man was looking at the engine. Putting my groceries in my car, I continued to watch the couple from about twenty-five feet away.

A young man in his early twenties, a grocery bag in his arm, approached. The old man saw him coming, too, and took a few steps towards him. I saw him point to the open hood of his car and say something. Turning away, the young man put his grocery bag into a brand-new sports car. He turned back around and yelled at the old gentleman, "You shouldn't be allowed to drive a car at your age!" With a dismissive wave of his hand, got in his car, peeling rubber as he sped off.

The old gentleman pulled out his handkerchief, mopping his brow as he went back to his car and poked at the engine. He went to his wife and spoke with her, appearing to tell her things would be okay.

I'd seen enough and decided to approach the old man. He saw me coming and stood up straight. I said, "Looks like you're having a problem." He smiled, and quietly nodded his head. I looked under the hood, and knew whatever the problem was, it was beyond me. I looked around spotted a gas station up the road, and told the old gent that I would be right back.

As I approached the station, I saw two attendants inside working on cars. I relayed the old man's problem to one of them. I offered to pay if they would follow me and help him, and both agreed.

By the time I returned, the old man had pushed the heavy car under the shade of a tree and was comforting his wife. As we approached, he stood up and thanked me for my help.

As the mechanics diagnosed the problem, I spoke with the old gentleman. When I had shaken hands with him earlier, he had noticed my Marine Corps ring and now he commented on it, saying he had also served as a Marine. I asked, "What outfit did you serve with?" He said he served with the first Marine Division at Tarawa, Saipan, Iwo Jima and Guadalcanal. I thought, "Wow!" He had hit all the big ones. He told me he retired from the Corps after the war.

We heard the car engine turn over and saw the mechanics lower the hood. As they walked over to us, the old man reached for his wallet. I stopped him and said I would just put the bill on my AAA card. He thanked me, opened his wallet and handed me and the mechanics a card that I assumed had his name and address on it. I stuck it directly into my pocket.

We shook hands all around again, and I said my goodbyes to the old man's wife. I followed the two mechanics back to the station. I told them I wanted to pay them for their time, but they refused to charge me. They'd overheard the old man and I talking; both men had also served as Marines.

As we once again shook hands all around, one mechanic pulled the old man's card from his pocket. As I turned to leave, he said, "You should look at the card the old man gave you." I said I'd do that and drove off.

I had gone only about two blocks when I decided I had to look at the old man's card, so I pulled over. I pulled out the card, and looked at it for a long, long time. The gentleman's name was on the card in gold leaf, and underneath it was written: "Congressional Medal of Honor Society."

I sat there motionless, looking at the card and reading it over and over. I looked up from the card and smiled to myself and marveled that on this day, four Marines had all come together because one of us needed help. He was an older man all right, but it felt good to have stood next to greatness and courage, and an honor to have been in his presence.

We do well to remember that freedom isn't free; throughout the years, thousands of men and women like him have paid the price for the freedom we enjoy today in America.

America is not at war; America is at the mall. The U.S. Military is at war. Those who served and still serve deserve our gratitude; so do those who supported them, and those who continue to support them still. ❖

♫ Bachelor Cooking ♫

Two confirmed bachelors sat talking. Their conversation drifted from politics to cooking. "I got a cookbook once," said the first, "but I could never do anything with it." "Too much fancy cooking in it, eh?" asked the second. "You said it. Every one of the recipes began the same way – 'Take a clean dish...'"

HE'S SO CHEAP that his idea of a 20-percent tip is 20% of what anyone else would leave.

♫ Think Big ♫

Mike had just retired as a mechanic and was married to a young blonde wife, Ethel. One day Mike had to take the bus to town to buy a part for his car, and when he returned, he was breathless and exhausted. "What happened?" Ethel asked. He had a big smile on his face as he proudly explained, "I had a great idea. I ran all the way home behind the bus and saved myself fifty cents." She didn't look at all pleased. "Mike, you're always thinking small. Why didn't you run behind a taxi, and save yourself $8?"

♫ On Hands And Knees ♫

Walking into the bar, this old guy, Mike, said to Charlie the bartender, "Pour me a stiff one – I just came from Mass, and last night I had another fight with the little woman." "Oh yeah?" said Charlie, "And how did this one end?" "Well, after 35 years of fighting," old Mike replied, "she came to me on her hands and knees." "Really!?" said Charlie. "Now that's a switch! What did she say?" "She said, 'Come out from under the bed, you little chicken.'"

New To The Game

Two elderly sisters donated $5 to a charity and, to their surprise, won tickets to a football game. Since they'd never seen a live football game before, Madge thought the free tickets would provide an excellent opportunity for doing so. "I think so, too," said Mabel. "Let's go!" They soon found themselves high in a noisy stadium overlooking a large, grassy expanse. They watched the kickoff and the seemingly endless back-and-forth struggles that comprised the scoreless first half. They enjoyed the band music and cheerleader performance that followed. Then came the second half. When the teams lined up for the second-half kickoff, Madge nudged her sister. "I guess we can go home now, Mabel," she said. "This is where we came in."

Think About This...

The following are parts of a speech broadcast by legendary ABC radio commentator Paul Harvey on April 3, 1965:

If I were the devil, I'd educate authors in how to make lurid literature exciting so that anything else would appear dull and uninteresting. I'd threaten TV with dirtier movies and vice versa.

To the young, I would whisper, "The Bible is a myth." I would convince them that man created God instead of the other way around. I would confide that what is bad is good, and what is good is "square." In the ears of the young marrieds, I would whisper that work is debasing, that more cocktail parties are good for you.

I'd peddle narcotics to whom I could. I'd sell alcohol to ladies and gentlemen of distinction, and I'd tranquilize the rest with pills.

If I were the devil, I would encourage schools to refine young intellects but neglect to discipline emotions... let those run wild. I could get the courts to rule what I construe as against God and in favor of pornography, and thus, I would evict God from the courthouse, and then from the school house, and then from the houses of Congress.

And then, in His own churches, I would substitute psychology for religion, and I would deify science because that way men would become smart enough to create super weapons but not wise enough to control them.

If I were Satan, I'd make the symbol of Easter an egg, and the symbol of Christmas a bottle.

If I were the devil, I would take from those who have and give to those who wanted, until I had killed the incentive of the ambitious.

And then, my police state would force everybody back to work.

Not To Hurt Your Feelings

The elderly pastor was cleaning up his office one Friday morning when, in the back of the office, he found a small box containing 3 eggs and a hundred $1 bills. He showed his secretary the box to ask her about the box and its contents. Embarrassed, she admitted having hidden the box there for the last 25 years. Puzzled, the old pastor asked her, "Why?" The secretary replied that she hadn't wanted to hurt his feelings. He asked her how the box could have hurt his feelings. She said that every time that he had delivered a poor sermon, she had placed an egg in the box. The pastor felt that three poor sermons in 25 years was certainly nothing to feel bad about, so he asked her what the $100 was for. She replied, "Each time I got a dozen eggs, I sold them to the neighbors for $1."

Old Father Murphy

Father Murphy who'd been a priest at St. Mary's for over 40 years, walks into a pub in Donegal, and says to the first man he meets, "Do you want to go to heaven?" The man said, "I do, Father." The priest said, "Then stand over there against the wall." Then the old priest asked a second man, "Do you want to go to heaven?" "Certainly, Father," was the man's reply. "Then stand over there against the wall," said Father Murphy. Then the good Father walked up to O'Toole, with a cold beer in his hand and said, "Do you want to go to heaven?" O'Toole said, "No, I don't, Father." The priest said, "I don't believe this. You mean to tell me that when you die you don't want to go to heaven?" O'Toole said, "Oh, when I die, yes. I thought you were getting a group together to go right now."

Right On The Label

A Polish man moved to the USA and married an American woman. Although his English was far from perfect, they got along very well – until one day. He rushed into a lawyer's office and asked the lawyer if he could arrange a divorce for him. The lawyer said that getting a divorce could depend on the circumstances, and asked him the following questions: "Have you any grounds?" "Yes, an acre and half and nice little home." "No, I meant, what is the foundation for this case?" "It's made of concrete." "I don't think you understand. Does either of you have a real grudge?" "No, we have carport, and not need one." "I mean, what are your relations like?" "All my relations still in Poland." "Is there any infidelity in your marriage?" "We have hi-fidelity stereo and good DVD player." "Does your wife beat you up?" "No, I always up before her." Finally, the lawyer says, "Why do you want this divorce?" "She going to kill me." "What makes you think that?" "I got proof." "What kind of proof?" "She going to poison me," insisted the man. "She buy a bottle at drugstore and put on shelf in bathroom. I can read, and it say: 'Polish Remover.'"

Tandem Bicycle Riders

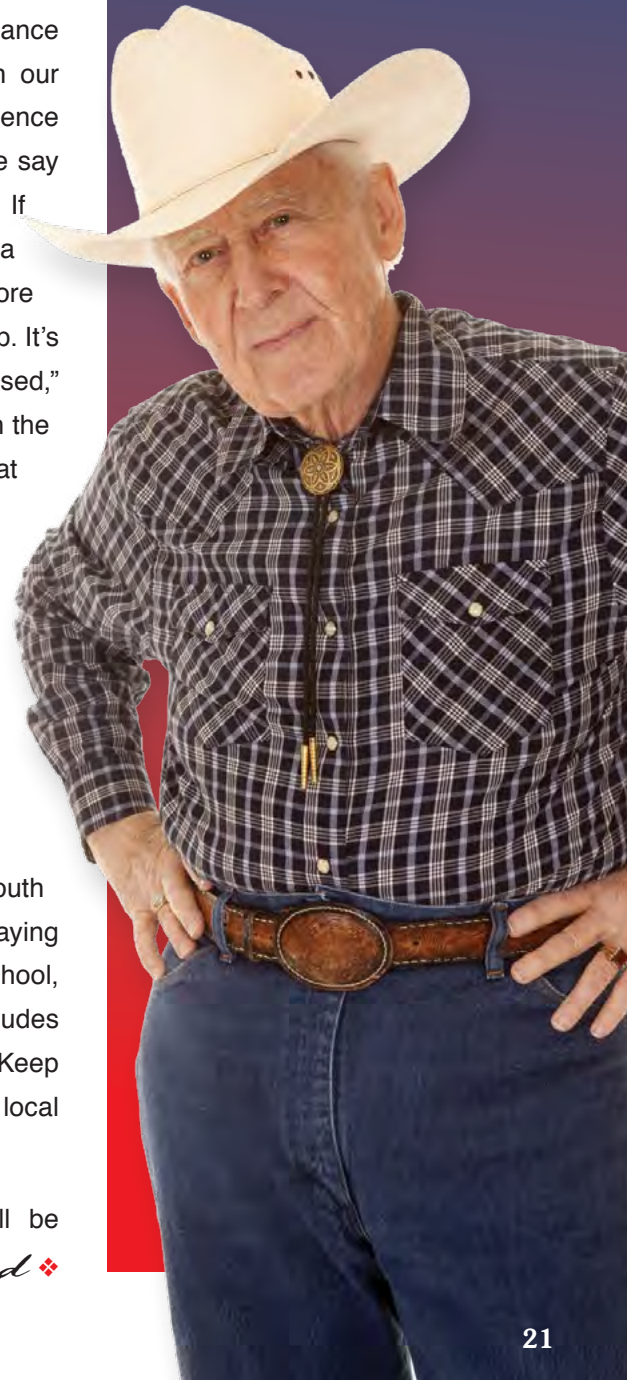

A tandem rider is stopped by a police car. "What've I done, officer?" asks the rider. "Perhaps you didn't notice sir, but your wife fell off your bike half a mile back..." "Oh, thank God for that," says the rider, "I thought I'd gone deaf!"

Plane Crash In Poland

A small two-seater Cessna 152 plane crashed into a cemetery early this afternoon in central Poland. Polish search and rescue workers have recovered 300 bodies so far and expect that number to climb as digging continues into the evening.

Here's CLIFFORD!

HELLO AGAIN, FOLKS! Glad to see you back. I got to thinkin' recently about this great country of ours. It's full of wonderful people and places, but for me the South is the place to be. I was born and raised here, as were my momma and daddy and my grandparents on both sides, so our roots go deep. Now, I'm not saying the North doesn't have some great places and reasons to love it, but just let me tell you why I love the South...

NUMBER ONE – It's the people. Whether it's iced tea, Grandma's melt-in-your-mouth pecan pie or our southern folks, the South has some of the sweetest things on Earth. The people are just downright the friendliest folks you will ever meet. When you talk about southern hospitality, it's not fiction, my friend. People will always go the extra mile to make you feel welcome and loved.

NUMBER TWO – You have to admit, we have warm weather even in the winter, and I'll tell you that both the wife and I are wimps when it comes to the cold weather you have up North. It gets a bit muggy here at times, but when I get up and go outside for a walk after being in my air conditioned house all day, that warm Southern air greets you like a big hug. That never gets old.

NUMBER THREE – You'll never taste anything better than some Southern fried pork smothered with a delicious sauce, a few baked beans and a little coleslaw... hoo boy, you are livin' mighty fine! Then you gotta remember grits, our biscuits and our one-of-a-kind fried chicken. I love Southern cooking! It may be a little tough on the waistline, but it's finger lickin' good.

NUMBER FOUR – You know, I visited New York City not long ago. It's really fast – I almost had an anxiety attack just walkin' around the block from the hotel where I was staying. I'm just used to things moving along at a much slower pace. I enjoy my relaxing times with my friends and the family. There's nothing like just sitting on the porch and talkin' to a neighbor who happens by on his or her evening walk. Yup, you cannot beat laid-back Southern living.

NUMBER FIVE – The importance of faith. When driving through our town, you'll notice the prominence of churches in the area. Let me say it's more than just buildings. If you're talking to people – even a stranger – it won't be long before the word "spiritual" is brought up. It's common to hear words like "blessed," "God," and "prayer" sprinkled in the conversation. I'm so grateful that I live in a place where when you're going through a hard time, people are praying for your recovery from whatever has you down. I mean, there is nowhere else you'll find so many people praying for your welfare.

NUMBER SIX – Oh yes, the South loves their football, from kids playing in the school yard to high school, college and the pros. That includes young girls to grandmas, too. Keep a lookout, you'll see a lot of our local kids playing in the pros.

Thanks for stoppin' by, I'll be seeing you soon. Clifford ❖

The Dumbest People EVER

A MEDICAL STUDENT WAS WORKING in the toxicology department at the poison control center. A woman called in very upset because she'd caught her little daughter eating ants. The medical student quickly reassured her that the ants are not harmful and there would be no need to bring her daughter into the hospital. She calmed down, and at the end of the conversation happened to mention that she gave her daughter some ant poison to eat in order to kill the ants. The student told the mother to take her daughter in to the emergency room immediately.

SEVERAL YEARS BACK, some Boeing employees on the work field decided to steal a life raft from one of the 747s. They were successful in getting it out of the plane and home. When they took it for a float on the river, they were quite surprised by a Coast Guard helicopter coming towards them. It turned out that the chopper was homing in on the emergency locator that is automatically activated when the raft is inflated. They are no longer employed by Boeing.

A WOMAN REPORTED her car as stolen, and mentioned that there was a car phone in it. The policeman taking the report called the phone and told the guy that answered that he had read the ad in the newspaper and wanted to buy the car. They arranged to meet, and the thief was arrested.

*"Sometimes I worry about being a success in a mediocre world."

AFTER BEING LAID OFF from three jobs in the past year, Dewey was hired to work in a warehouse. Unfortunately, one day he lost control of the forklift and drove it off the loading dock. Surveying the damage, the owner shook his head and said, "I'm sorry, Dewey, but I'm going to have to withhold 10% of each of your paychecks until we recoup the damage." "How much will it cost?" Dewey asked. "About $5,000," the owner replied. "Finally!" Dewey exclaimed. "Job security!"

A GOOD SCAPEGOAT is nearly as welcome as an actual solution to the problem.

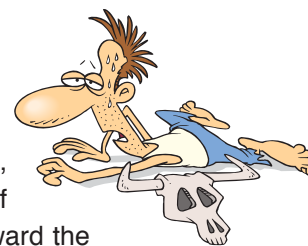

Herbs For Youth

At a health food store a man asked for an all-around herbal combination. The owner recommended one he said he'd sold for over sixty years. Dubious, the fellow took the bottle to the cashier, a really stunning young lady. As he was paying, he asked, "Has your boss really been selling this stuff for sixty years? He looks to be a lot younger than I am." "Can't really say, sir," replied the young woman. "I've only been working with him for forty years."

The Solution

Tom had been a compulsive worrier for years until he found a way to overcome this problem. His friends noticed the dramatic change. "You don't seem to be worried about anything anymore." "I hired a professional worrier for $1,000 a week," Tom replied. "I haven't had a single qualm since." "A thousand a week! I know you don't have enough money to pay that kind of bill!" "That's his problem," calmly replied Tom.

DESPERATE

A traveler was stumbling through the desert, desperate for water, when he saw something far off in the distance. Hoping to find water, he walked toward the image only to find a little old peddler sitting at a card table with a bunch of ties laid out for sale. The parched wanderer asked, "Please, I'm dying of thirst. Can I have some water?" The man replied, "I don't have any water, but why don't you buy a tie? Here's one that goes nicely with your clothes." The desperate man shouted, "I don't want a tie, you nut! I need water!" "Okay, don't buy a tie. But to show you what a nice guy I am, I'll tell you that over that hill there about five miles is a nice restaurant. Walk that way. They'll give you all the water you want." The man thanked the peddler and walked away toward the hill and eventually disappeared out of sight. Three hours later, he returned to the table where the man sat with the ties. The man at the card table asked, "I told you—about five miles over that hill. Couldn't you find it?" "I found it all right," said the traveler. "They wouldn't serve me without a tie."
